

WRAC Site Review
Wednesday August 28, 2002

Please visit <http://csg.uwaterloo.ca/beta/learningspace/> and choose Arts and Culture.

Response was via telephone conversation on October 16, 2002.

Questions were not answered individually. Martin responded that he had reviewed the site and was OK with the general look and feel of the site. He had shown it to the Board members and they are OK with it. They like the fact that it looks like WRAC but indicates that it is not WRAC's site.

Reviewed the issues with the database questions and he responded that many of the database questions were because of incorrect data in the current cultural directory. However, they are starting work on a new one that would not be ready until 2003; they would not be making any changes to the current copy.

Performance venues database is just about complete and will forward a copy later in the week.

WRAC would be OK with the site being shown at the Urban CAP launch on October 25th.
